

First Aid Kit Guide

Introduction

St Andrew's First Aid stock a comprehensive choice of first aid supplies including first aid kits, consumables, defibrillators, equipment (such as evacuation chairs), posters and signage.

HSE regulations now include improved guidance of the first aid supplies and equipment that are required in the workplace. Employers must provide adequate and appropriate equipment, facilities and personnel to ensure their employees receive immediate attention if they are injured or taken ill at work.

Before selecting your workplace's first aid equipment and supplies you must consider the size of your workplace and the number of employees in each area.

All of our products have been sourced by experts ensuring that our range of first aid supplies meets the needs of the most demanding environments.

All our products can be purchased on our website www.firstaid.org.uk/shop or by calling 0141 332 1828.

Do I need a first aid kit for my workplace?

The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) advise that all workplaces have a first aid kit. The contents should be based on your first aid needs assessment, there is no mandatory list of items.

In 2019/20, there were 693,000 non-fatal injuries in UK workplaces, having a first aid kit and first aider on hand can help reduce absence lengths of staff after an injury.

The HSE advise as a minimum that your first aid kit could contain:

- first aid guidance leaflet
- individually wrapped sterile plasters
- sterile eye pads
- triangular bandages
- resuscitation face shield
- HSE dressing large & medium
- disposable gloves
- burns dressing

How often do I need to replace the items in my first aid kit?

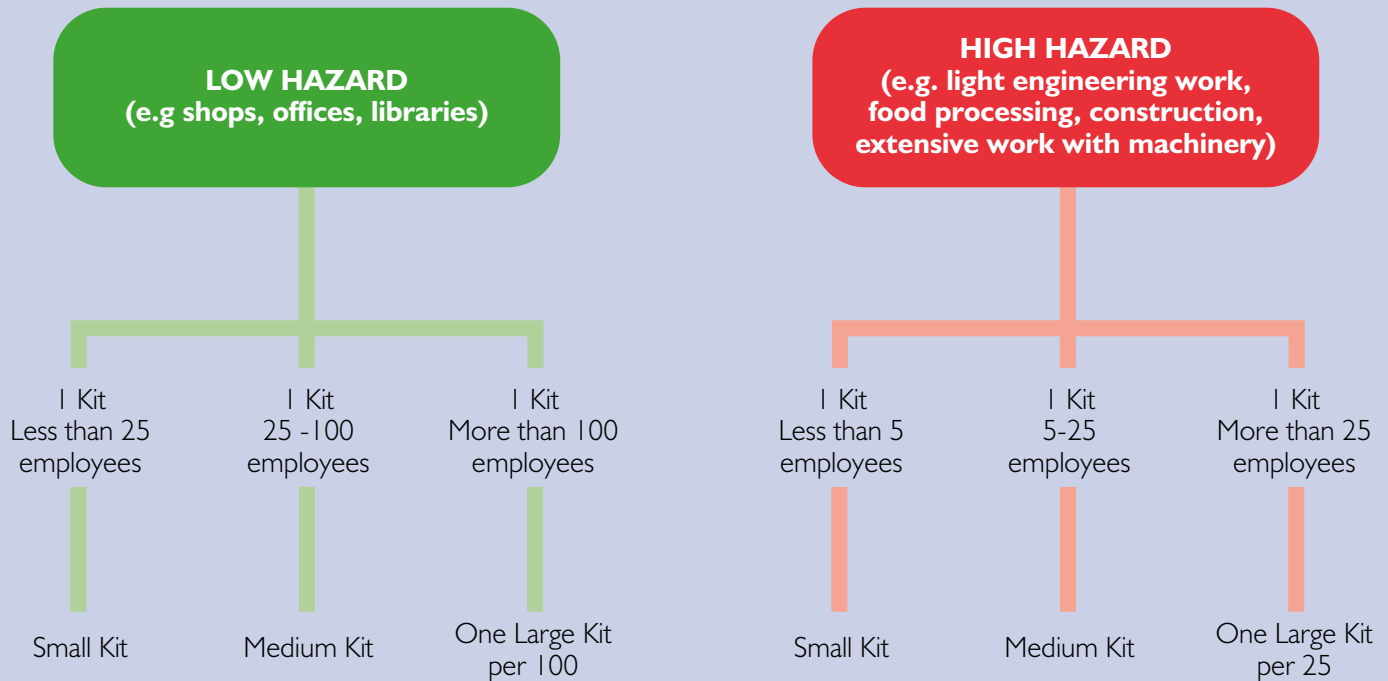

You should be replacing items in your first aid kit as you use them to ensure you always have a supply of all necessary items. It is important to check your first aid kit on a regular basis to ensure it is well stocked and all items are in date. Please contact us on 0141 332 1828 or email supplies@firstaid.org.uk

What is each item in my first aid kit used for?

Below we have listed the most common items that you will come across within your first aid kit and what they should be used for. All these items can be purchased individually from our online supplies store.

Sterile Dressings

- Wound Dressings - A sterile wound dressing will usually consist of a dressing pad that is attached to a roller bandage. These are used for larger wounds such as an abrasion or a stab wound.
- Adhesive Dressings (plasters) - Adhesive dressings are applied to small cuts or grazes and are made of fabric or waterproof plastic. Those who work with food are required to use blue plasters. Hypoallergenic plasters can also be used for anyone who is allergic to plaster adhesive.

Other items

- Cleansing wipes - used to clean skin around wounds.
- Gauze pads - these pads can be used as a dressing, padding or to clean around a wound.
- Adhesive tape - use this to secure dressings and bandages.
- Scissors - these should be blunt ended so as not to cause injuries and can be used to cut bandages.
- Pins or clips - use these to secure the end of a bandage.
